

BETTER THAN PEANUTS

92

PITY THE POOR plane passengers munching their mini pretzels or unwrapping their fast-food airport sandwiches.

You have a neat little packet of CHEESE TO GO, from Manhattan's cheese palace, Artisanal, complete with dried fruit and/or nuts, bought right at La Guardia or JFK (or at Boston's Logan airport).

TAKING TEA with ALTITUDE

93 You want fusion? We suggest sipping cream tea and nibbling finger sandwiches or scones in the CAMERON HIGHLANDS overlooking a Malaysian jungle. Located 125 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, the region is the center of Malaysia's tea production but is also known for its Tudor architecture, terraced rose gardens, and afternoon tea, thanks to English colonists who developed the area in the late 1920s. —STACEY NIELD
